The Vanilla Story is a Totonaca “Romeo and Juliet” written hundreds of years before Shakespeare penned his play. The Vanilla Story is an ageless tale, passed down through the centuries by Totonaca storytellers. It is a story of two young people who fell in love despite their differences, and teaches that all people deserve respect and the ability to choose their own path in life. Don Alejandrino, a revered Totonaca storyteller, shares this time-honoured story of the vanilla flower and the orange tree.

The Totonaca people of El Tajin, Veracruz Mexico, are an ancient indigenous people, and are the builders of the pre-Columbian pyramids of El Tajin. This program introduces the reader and viewer to the rich culture and ancient history of the Totonaca people. Vanilla is very special to the Totonaca people. The best vanilla beans in the world come from El Tajin and the crop is grown and prepared in the same way as in generations past.

Captioned in English and Spanish. The DVD includes English and Spanish audio versions with captioning for each language as well as the Totonaca language. It also includes an introduction, featuring the culture and history of the Totonaca people of El Tajin, Vera Cruz Mexico. All Indigenous People Project stories include a teaching and library guide, are filled with original art and music, and provide wonderful insight into cultures that many Canadians know little about. A unique, vanilla heart craft kit is sold separately; the DVD includes a special feature showing Don Alejandrino demonstrating how to construct the dream catcher as well as written instructions.
